ALLIES RESUME TERRIFIC RAIDS ON EUROPE

Eisenhower Completes Inspection of Invasion Army

General Returns From Tour of Main Army Camps

Three-Way Assault Coming, Says Smuts

By JAMES M. LONG

LONDON, May 19 (P)—The pre-invasion tempo quickened tonight as General Eisenhower returned to supreme headquarters from an inspection of troops massed in Britain.

A curt announcement said the Allied commander-in-chief had completed "a quick visit to air and ground troops in England and Northern Ireland."

His visit occurred as Axis radios shouted descriptions of "English embarkation ports jammed with all manner of invasion material" and noted the clearing of weather over the straits of Dover as bringing "D-Day" nearer.

Weather Now Favorable

"The weather the British isles have been having for the past six days put a full stop to all strategic plans," said a German broadcast, adding, "it remains to be seen whether the brighter weather of the past twenty-four hours will lead to improved landing conditions."

It also was announced tonight that the king, queen, and Princess Elizabeth had witnessed one of the biggest glider landings ever staged in Britain.

With Air Chief Marshal Trafford Leigh-Mallory and Lt. Gen. F. A. M. Browning, commander of airborne troops, they witnessed a sky-darkening fleet of gliders that landed and filled a field like a jammed parking lot. They saw hundreds of parachutists drop in faultless precision.

Jan Smuts Optimistic

A three-way assault from the west, east and south may bring a "final decision in Europe much earlier than pessimists forecast," the veteran British Empire statesman Jan Christian Smuts said today in an address at Birmingham.

These confident words highlighted the pre-invasion news of the day, which found the Germans crowding roads in all of Western Europe, with final dispositions of first-line shock troops being placed for a coastal stand against the impending assault.

German Field Marshal von Rundstedt, upon whom the Germans must pin their anti-invasion hopes, was being forced more and more to rely upon darkness to screen his movements of troops and supplies in preparation for the blow to come, as the daylight aerial assaults across the channel were resumed.

British Guard Coast

Britain, armed to the teeth, guarded her position zealously behind a sealed coastal zone, tight air and sea cover, drastic curtailment of travel and a tight-lipped populace, now accustomed to war.

Those who talk too much get the fishy eye from their neighbors, and, if it goes too far, attention from the authorities. Even guessing "when it will be" is not a popular pastime.

The confidence of the British, however, is reflected in the trend of the talk—in Parliament and in the pubs, toward postwar concerns of the empire. Field Marshal Smuts, Prime Minister of South Africa, and Senior Empire statesman, talked a good deal of postwar world reorganization in his speech at Birmingham, made at a ceremony at which he was granted the freedom of the city.

In predicting the victorious three-day blows Smuts warned against concentrating all hopes on the western invasion alone, declaring that "all three fronts are but one and should be viewed as a whole."

As for the Pacific war, he added that he was "inclined to be more optimistic than many others about the duration of the Japanese war after Hitler has been finished."

Dewey Leading In Oregon Vote

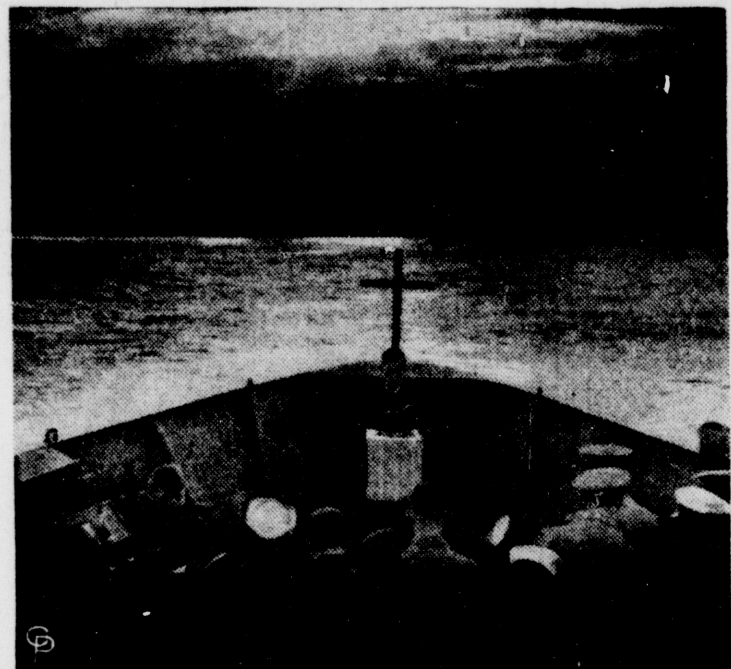

By PAUL MILLER

PORTLAND, Ore., May 19 (P)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, Lt. Commander Harold E. Stassen and Gov. John W. Bricker ran in that order in early returns tonight from Oregon's Republican presidential primary.

Control of the state's fifteen-member delegation to the Republican National convention was at stake.

For the Republican nomination for United States senator, full term, Wayne L. Morris led Sen. Rufus C. Holman by 2350 votes to 2065 in returns from seventy-nine of 1828 precincts.

Americans Take Wakde Airfield

Jap Defenders Caught Napping

ADVANCED ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NEW GUINEA, Saturday, May 20 (P)—Invasion-hardened Yanks of the sixth army have shattered mortar-firing Japanese defense positions and won the strategic Wakde island airfield, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today.

The Americans seized the Wakde field the same day they stormed the beach of the island, one day after they took an eight-mile beachhead on the nearby Dutch New Guinea mainland.

Take Japs by Surprise

MacArthur's troops swept around the west side of the island and took the Japanese defenders by surprise. The flanking move pinned the Japanese defenders into a pocket a half-mile square on the northeast portion of the island.

While the Americans were pushing their lightning invasion 110 miles northwest of Hollandia, which they took less than a month ago in another swift amphibious operation, the enemy struck back weekly at Hollandia.

One Japanese raider came over the Hollandia sector and dropped a few bombs but little damage was done, the general's communique said.

The quick capture of the Wakde airfield, which MacArthur said presages the reconquest of all Dutch New Guinea, came during the second day of the jump up the coast.

Motorman Gets Best of Copper

Quits Job When Given a Ticket

WASHINGTON, May 19 (P)—One block from the White House, Harry L. Hopkins pushed his motorman's cap to the back of his head, gathered up his lunch box and quit his job.

It all started when Motorman Hopkins's trolley clipped the coattails of Policeman J. C. Gibboney during the rush hour.

Gibboney boarded the trolley and proceeded to write out a traffic summons.

As the trolley moved on to the next stop, Motorman Hopkins and Policeman Gibboney debated the merits of the case with some heat.

Suddenly Hopkins stopped the car, announced that he was "burned up," (and departed).

In less time than it takes a policeman to blow his whistle, traffic was hopelessly snarled.

Gibboney surveyed the situation and then dashed after the rapidly disappearing motorman.

But Motorman Hopkins continued walking at a fast clip and made it clear that his break with the trolley was complete.

Gibboney, on the run, enlisted the aid of a capital transit company supervisor on duty at a nearby intersection. Together they argued, cajoled and finally persuaded Hopkins to return to his trolley.

Amid the delighted shouts of his passengers Hopkins mounted the motorman's seat and drove off with a final burst of remarks on policemen in general.

House Votes Big Landing Barges

Rep. Fish Asks They Be Sent to MacArthur

WASHINGTON, May 19 (P)—Construction of another million tons of landing craft was approved in the House today and Rep. Fish (R-N.Y.) promptly demanded that Gen. Douglas MacArthur be given most of the new attack barges to carry the war "into the heart of Japan."

Though there was no disagreement over the legislation, which was sent to the Senate, it touched off an acrimonious House debate over blame for the Pearl Harbor attack.

Navy Bill Approved

When the shouting died down, the House speedily approved a second navy bill, authorizing an extra $65,000,000 for ordnance and production facilities, including $15,000,000 for development of rocket guns.

During debate over the landing craft Fish criticized the navy "for not realizing the need for these landing boats sooner," and the Japanese are growing "stronger and stronger." Their plane production, Fish asserted, has jumped from 1,000 to 2,000 a month.

Rep. Kelley (D-Pa.) interposed that Fish "had been as ambitious and energetic in this chamber before Pearl Harbor in talking about preparedness we would not have had to island hop in the Pacific."

Fish Replies to Critics

Fish reported that he and other Republicans had "fought to keep us out of war and if those who wanted us to get into war had succeeded six months before Pearl Harbor, the Germans never would have attacked Russia and we would have been holding the war bag in the greatest disaster this country ever experienced."

He challenged the Democrats to proceed with the court martial of Admiral Husband E. Kimmel and Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short, the Pearl Harbor commanders, "and let the people know who was responsible."

Von Rundstedt Reported Ousted

LONDON, Saturday, May 20 (P)—The Moscow radio early today broadcast a Tass dispatch under a Geneva dateline saying that "according to reports from Paris Rundstedt (Field Marshal Karl Rudolf von Rundstedt) who has been dismissed from the post of commander-in-chief of German troops in the west, has paid a farewell visit to Rouen."

Only Thursday night the German DNB agency formally identified von Rundstedt as supreme commander of the German anti-invasion forces, with Field Marshals Erwin Rommel and Johannes Blaskowitz subordinate to him.

There was no confirmation or amplification of the Tass account that a man so nearly appointed had been dismissed.

German Troops In Italy Fall Back in Panic

Infantry Smashes Into Hitler Line

By EDWARD KENNEDY

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NAPLES, May 19 (P)—Reeling under Allied blows which had torn away the Gustav line and engulfed more than 100 towns and villages in Central Italy, battered German troops fell back in "disorderly retreat" through the Hitler line today under a slashing, relentless attack.

An Allied spokesman declared that the American and French onslaught between the Liri valley and the Tyrrhenian sea had thrown the Nazis into a "disorderly retreat instead of a mere withdrawal," and that huge quantities of enemy equipment were falling into Allied hands.

Many Germans Captured

Lines of German prisoners streaming to the rear became longer, and ever more masses of Allied guns and armor and went forward to press the assault.

American tanks and French infantry broke into the Hitler line at Sant' Oliva on the Liri river ten miles southwest of Cassino, Sid Feder of the Associated Press reported in a dispatch from the front.

This was the first disclosure that the doughboys had joined the French in their slugging attack near the center of the battle front, and indicated that American troops were advancing along a curving sixteen-mile front extending from the Liri river to the Gulf of Gaeta near Formia.

Heavy Artillery Fire

American troops pressing forward near the coast were reported poised before Itri, an important road junction four miles northwest of Formia. The town was under heavy artillery fire, Monte Pasigeto, lofty peak eight miles north of Itri, already was in American hands.

A Yank breakthrough at Itri probably would compel the Germans to pull back into positions in a mountain range extending from Bondi southwestward to the sea near Terracina. This defense line, however, would be extremely vulnerable to an attack from the rear by Allied forces on the Anzio beachhead.

The desperate position of the Hitler line defenders pointed to the fact that the Allies already had an excellent start toward their avowed objective of destroying the Nazi Tenth army.

An Allied spokesman announced that the Allied Fifth and Eighth armies were fighting together as a single unit for the first time under Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, in much the same manner that two corps within a single army would function. He attributed the great success of the week-old offensive to excellent work in establishing communications quickly across two mountain passes and many streams.

At the extreme northern end of the active fighting front, Polish troops had assisted in the capture of Cassino yesterday pressed on westward to within a mile and a half of Piedimonte, a reputed strong point of the Hitler line in the mountains just north of the Via Cassina, main highway to Rome.

Martin Company Votes $1.50 Dividend

BALTIMORE, May 19 (P)—A semi-annual dividend of $1.50 per share on its common stock was declared today by the Glenn L. Martin Company at a board of directors meeting.

Glenn L. Martin, president, announced the dividend would be payable June 12 to stockholders of record June 2. Two $1.50 dividends were declared by the company last year.

Russia Resumes Attacks on Nazis; Red Air Fleet Shells Polish Port

By RUSSELL LANDSTROM

LONDON, Saturday, May 20 (P)—Moscow announced early today that the Red army was attacking in the Vitebsk area of White Russia and had captured a fortified Nazi stronghold in that vicinity after a fierce two-hour battle.

This disclosure of renewed activity on the northern end of the long front, made in the broadcast supplement to the Russian communique, was accompanied by Red army reports of repeated Nazi assaults on Soviet positions near Stanislavow in Old Poland.

WLB Approves Agreement in Mine Wage Case

All but Southern Operators Accept

By JOSEPH A. LOFTUS

WASHINGTON, May 19 (P)—The War Labor Board approved tonight the wage agreement reached between John L. Lewis's United Mine Workers and more than seventy per cent of the soft coal industry, after a year long record of controversy and four general coal strikes.

The decision was 10 to 2, with two of the four industry members dissenting.

Now Up to Operators

The effect of the decision is to transfer the contractual obligation for existing wage and working conditions from Secretary of Interior Ickes to the operators, thereby permitting probable withdrawal of government control of the mines covered by the contract.

The decision does not, however, close the coal case inasmuch as the Southern coal operators' association is not a party to the agreement, and therefore is not obligated to pay the $40 lump sum settlement for retroactive travel time claims.

Southern Group Bolts

The southern operator group is contesting the principle of portal-to-portal pay in the courts. Hence, while the day to day wages in all soft coal mines will be uniform, only those miners under the contract will start collecting now the $40 back pay for travel time.

Edward R. Burke, president of the southern operators, said that group would not pay the $40. "There is no liability," Burke said, "and no reason to compromise a liability that doesn't exist. We propose to carry the court test to a final conclusion and to win it."

Lewis, UMW president, was out of the city, but a spokesman said the WLB's approval of the contract would "restore confidence to the men and enable the industry to operate at a high productive rate." He ventured the opinion, too, that the Southern operators would be obliged eventually to accept all the terms of the contract.

Two Members Dissent

The WLB industry members who dissented were John P. McWilliams and Frederick S. Fales. They contended, however, in the portion calling for the $40 retroactive payment. The two industry members who joined the labor and public groups were George Mead and Walter T. Margatta.

The principal change in the contract from the old agreement which expired more than a year ago is the establishment of a portal-to-portal day of nine hours. That is a day measured from the time the miner enters the mine entrance until the time he leaves it. Under the old contract, only the time spent in work at the actual coal face was measured and the day was seven hours.

In the nine hour day, the underground mine worker has fifteen minutes lunch for which he is not paid. He is "assumed" to spend forty-five minutes traveling underground to and from his place of work. That leaves eight hours for production—an hour a day more than under the old contract.

Japanese Try Luck at "Fishing"

CHUNGKING, May 19 (P)—A Japanese claim in a Tokyo communique that 45 American planes had been destroyed over Suichuan in Kiangsi Province May 12 was described as fantastic and untrue today by headquarters of the United States Fourteenth Air Force.

The claim was called a "fishing expedition" by a United States spokesman.

700 Maryland Motorists Deprived of Gasoline

BALTIMORE, May 19 (P)—Daniel B. Leonard, Office of Price Administration enforcement attorney, said today that 700 Maryland motorists this year have been temporarily deprived of their right to buy gasoline after conviction of breaking the thirty-five mile-per-hour "victory speed limit."

47 RAF Officers Slain by Germans

Shootings Follow Attempt To Escape

By LEWIS HAWKINS

LONDON, May 19 (P)—Forty-seven British, Dominion and Allied air force officers were shot to death after a mass escape two months ago from a prison camp near Dresden, Germany, Foreign Secretary Eden informed the House of Commons today, adding that the British government was "profoundly shocked" over the news.

No Americans were involved in the incident, which was discovered by Swiss inspectors nearly a month after it happened.

76 Men Attempted Break

Eden in giving the said report to the country said that seventy-six men had participated in the break, fifteen were recaptured, fourteen remained at large and the others were shot, "some while resisting arrest and some in the course of a new attempt to escape after recapture."

Thus, in his account based on information so far available through Switzerland, Eden withheld condemnation of Germany as a violator of international law, and he asked Parliament's patience pending a more complete report which the Swiss have been asked to make.

International law permits the killing of escaping prisoners of those resisting capture. If there is no resistance, the most severe penalty which can be imposed is imprisonment.

Secrecy Causes Doubt

The strongest argument against the Nazis was that although the men were shot March 22, no word went outside Germany until the Swiss uncovered the incident in a routine inspection of the camp on April 17.

This war-torn island's bitterness against the Germans deepened with the news. All afternoon newspapers in London told it under banner headlines, and the Evening News, pointed out editorially that no voluntary report was made by the Germans, said that Parliament will insist that "justice shall be satisfied."

Eden made it clear that issue was not closed.

"The government," he told commons, "is profoundly shocked by this news and have urgently requested the protecting power (Switzerland) to demand from the German government full and immediate report of the circumstances in which these men met their deaths, and an explanation of its failure to report the facts at once to the protecting power."

Alabama G.O.P. Votes for Dewey

Entire Delegation Goes to Governor

By D. HAROLD OLIVER

Associated Press Staff Writer

As Oregon voters expressed their presidential nominee preferences and elected candidates for two United States Senate seats yesterday (Friday), Alabama Republicans in convention instructed fourteen delegates to support Gov. Thomas E. Dewey for the Republican presidential nomination. Alabama thus became the first southern state to organize an entire delegation behind a GOP prospect.

Previously the New York governor had won two instructed delegates each in Arkansas and Tennessee, and four in Tennessee, but the remainder of these state delegations are free to vote as they please in the national convention.

Only Two Opposed

The Alabama instruction, approved with only two dissenting votes, amended an original proposal which would have called for an uninstructed delegation, as was voted in 1940. Four Dewey supporters were named delegates-at-large by a vote of 21 to 81.

Dewey's pledged and claimed delegate strength thus climbed to 338, with 530 required for a nomination. He needs 192 more for the necessary majority, but most likely he will not have these before United States delegates caucused at Chicago. Only 138 GOP delegates remain to be chosen and Pennsylvania's big block of seventy uninstructed delegates will meet in Philadelphia today (Saturday) amid indications they will avoid pledging, "as a courtesy" to the governors' conference convening in the state May 28-31.

Pennsylvania for Dewey

Dewey won Pennsylvania's primary write-in vote last month.

Only delegate selecting on today was in Utah, where Republicans called a convention to name eight delegates to the national convention. Advance indications were they would be uninstructed.

Voting in Oregon in the final presidential primary before the national conventions was light but politicians watched another write-in test between Dewey and Lieut. Commander Harold E. Stassen. No names were on the Republican ballot.

Allies Advancing In North Burma

By CHARLES A. GRUMICH

SOUTHEAST ASIA HEADQUARTERS, KANDY, CEYLON, May 19 (P)—Chinese and American jungle fighters drove into the outskirts of Myitkyina yesterday after taking the main Japanese airbase two miles to the south, and two other elements of a three-pronged drive converged on the big Japanese North Burma headquarters from the west and the north, the Allied command announced today.

Substantially reinforced by airborne troops, Brig. Gen. Frank Merrill's infantry stabbed boldly from the airfield toward the heart of the city; another column to the west threw a roadblock across the Mogaung-Myitkyina road, after occupying Mayraw Kakan village, and still another body of Marauders swept down from the north.

Atlantic Wall Area Bombed by Yanks and RAF

Nazi Plane Losses 125, Allies Lose 45

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

LONDON, Saturday, May 20 (P)—Great groups of RAF night bombers joined early today in the renewed aerial assault of Hitler's Europe to follow up a heavy combined daylight raid on Berlin and Brunswick by 1,500 American bombers and fighters Friday.

At least one sector of the night attack was directed at the Nazis' formidable Atlantic wall defenses against the coming invasion and came just in time to interrupt a post-midnight shelling of the Dover coast by big German guns across the channel.

The possibility that other RAF raiders were plunging deeper into the continent was indicated by German radio broadcasts that Allied planes were over Western Germany.

The night action came on the heels of a fierce, swirling aerial battle which raged over Germany during the American thrust at the Reich capital. In this savage battling United States Fortresses and Liberators and their escorts shot down 125 Nazi planes at a loss of twenty-six bombers and nineteen fighters.

The smashing resumption of the offensive from British bases brought out great swarms of Nazi fighters which had rested while weather checked the Allied onslaught.

Battle All Over Sky

Battles raged all over the sky, but the United States Fortresses and Liberators plunged through to rain an estimated 1,000 tons of bombs on each of their objectives.

The thunderous renewal of the pre-invasion aerial campaign after a five-day lull from British bases saw a total of more than 2,500 Allied planes take to the skies and drop 3,000 tons of bombs. After the heavy bomber operations had been completed escorted medium and light bombers of the Allied expeditionary air force made a series of late evening strikes into France and the Lowlands.

Bomb by Instruments

A communique issued by the United States Strategic Air Force said that heavy bombers flew through intermittent clouds which caused some formations to unload their bombs by instruments while others aimed at their objectives visually and were able to report good concentrations.

In addition to the determined fighter opposition, the communique said that "flak was moderate to intense."

Deliver Twin Blows

Up to 750 Liberators with an escort of at least equal strength delivered the twin blows on the Reich war centers in an apparent repeat performance of the May 8 raid, when 2,000 American planes carried out the first simultaneous attack on the cities, tagged by the flares "Big B" and "Little B."

The Berlin radio described the air battles in today's attack as "especially fierce," and said "flak also is taking an effective part in the defenses."

The first fighter and bomber pilots back from the capital said the Nazis threw up an intense anti-aircraft barrage and sent up swarms of fighters which attacked in waves. Some groups reported attacks by from fifty to 100 German interceptors, while others said they encountered no opposition at all.

Many Fighters Attack

One Fortress pilot said he had "never seen so many enemy fighters before," and another recalled an attack "by fifty Pöcke-Wolfs in one bunch," directly over Berlin. One Fortress group was attacked twice by waves of thirty Germans each. Not a single Fortress was lost in either attack, but bomber gunners downed several enemy fighters. One Fortress crew claimed four.

The enemy's anti-invasion installations along the northern coast of France also came in for a daylight pounding by formations of RAF Mosquito and Typhoon fighter-bombers.

The assault on the Reich appeared to have been divided equally between Berlin and Brunswick today. Liberators which bombed Brunswick also encountered intense flak and 100 to 200 German fighters attacking in groups up to fifty each.

As in the Berlin battles, a few bombers groups bore the brunt of the German attacks. The returning airmen reported "dogfights all over the sky."

Republicans Unite Against Poll Tax

WASHINGTON, May 19 (AP) — Thirty-three Republican members of the Senate introduced jointly late today a proposed constitutional amendment to outlaw state poll taxes.

Senator Wherry (Neb.), minority whip, filed the petition bearing the names of all but four of the GOP Senate members. The move came in the wake of the failure, early this week, of an attempt to bring an antipoll tax bill to a Senate vote. The bill was shelved when a motion for debate-limiting closure received far short of the required two-thirds majority.

The proposed new article of the constitution reads: "The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state by reason of failure to pay a poll tax."

Continental Hotel Completely Wrecked

LOBBY OF THE CONTINENTAL HOTEL, CASSINO, May 19 (AP) — There are only death, booby traps and a mark IV tank today in the lobby of the continental hotel where New Zealanders and Germans fought from room to room a few weeks ago.

What is left of the Continental hotel, which served as the Nazi stronghold at the crossroads in Cassino where the Allies were stopped in March, epitomizes the entire town of Cassino—until yesterday the chief bastion of the Gustav line. Cassino is dead. The stench of bodies cuts sharply through the air. There is not a whole building in the booby-trapped city and not a single life in what remnants of buildings remain.

The first great lighthouse, almost 400 feet high, stood on the island of Pharos, off the coast of Egypt, and was known as one of the seven wonders of the ancient world.

Horse-Swapping Argument Is Doing Duty Again

THE THREADBARE ARGUMENT about swapping horses is being trotted out again for use in the fourth-term campaign. It did service in the third-term campaign but now it finds considerable embellishment in Democratic propaganda. As reported by Frank R. Kent in the Baltimore Sun, this propaganda "is based on the assumption that Mr. Roosevelt is the only man capable of assuring victory for the United Nations; that no other is fit to be trusted to make the peace or handle the postwar problems; that 'to change horses' in 1944 would invite calamity; that only knowledge of these things and the overwhelming demand of the people could persuade the president to forego his personal desire to 'lay down the burden' and spend four more years in the White House."

This newspaper agrees with the statement by Kent that, however well they may go with glibbie people, there was not in the third-term campaign and there is not now anything in the record to sustain these arguments. The News anticipated some time since that we should hear a lot in this campaign about this famous saying attributed to Abraham Lincoln and pointed out how it was being twisted by those who would use it for their own selfish ends. What it then said bears repeating now in the light of the report given by Kent.

Lincoln's saying was in the past tense and concerning others. When the news came that the Republican national convention had renominated him for the presidency, he said: "I suppose they didn't want to swap horses while crossing a stream." It was one of his characteristic homely sayings.

But, the people changed horses at the time of great national crisis when they called Lincoln to the presidency. The Civil war was virtually on then and when Lincoln went to Washington to be inaugurated, the southern Confederacy was an accomplished fact, already formed and functioning.

And Lincoln himself changed horses frequently when he saw the necessity for doing so by bringing in new generals for the supreme military command. There were McClellan and Burnside and Halleck and Hooker and, finally, Grant.

In the face of these precedents in the life of one of the world's greatest men, can we today honestly say that, among a people four times the number of those in Lincoln's day, who have progressed so mightily, a single man is indispensable to guide us through the great domestic crises confronting us, especially when that man is chiefly responsible for them; or to handle the great international problems on which the American people have little differences as to the main objectives; or to carry on battle management, which necessarily is in the hands of our military and naval experts? The answer is obvious; but it suggests the pertinent question as to why we are still in the middle of the stream after twelve years of enlightened New Deal government.

Free Enterprise and Better Products

EUGENE HOLMAN, executive of one of the country's leading oil producing, refining and distributing concerns, made an address recently before the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York on oil as a product and as a pillar of freedom. Because of the interest aroused, the address has been done into a brochure and copies are being distributed.

Holman's observations concerning his concern's relationship with retailers and jobbers particularly bore out his contention that oil is a pillar of freedom, but it is no more so than any other product providing service and conveniences to the public.

The retailing of oil is done by small businessmen throughout the country, of whom there are between 10,000 and 15,000 jobbers and some 400,000 retailers, these being the people who operate the nation's garages and gasoline service stations, at least up to the time of gasoline rationing. Holman noted that his company had a very deep interest in some 25,000 of these retailers, who are small, independent businessmen. "They run their own affairs," he said. "If they want to stop handling our products and handle some one else's, they can. Naturally we try to keep them with us, but the best way we can do that is by supplying them with good products, offering them good service, helping them make money by being better businessmen."

There, it is submitted, is a powerful argument in behalf of the maintenance of the free enterprise system, to overthrow which there is unhappily a subversive movement under way in official circles. Not only can free and independent small businessmen handle this concern's products or that of any competing concern as they choose, but the competition which must be faced, and which is made possible by the free enterprise system, prompts better goods and better services, which it must be admitted is a wholesome thing not only for the national economy but for the individual, who necessarily benefits therefrom.

French in Italy Give Heart to Underground

POETIC JUSTICE might have been better served had the first conspicuous advance on the Italian front been made by Italian troops. This, of course, was not to be, so perhaps it is just as well that it was a French force that plunged through the Gustav Line to start the Nazi rout in Italy.

If nothing succeeds like success, it is success which is needed to unite the French factions at Algiers and to give heart to the underground in France. Encouraged by the victories of French troops in Italy, the secret army of France will await the invasion with greater confidence.

The new offensive in Italy is paying off in ground regained, too. Both the British and the Americans, mindful of past disappointments in Italy, showed restrained optimism when news of the Allied campaign broke. Gains to date have exceeded all public expectation. A first class disaster for the Nazis seems to be in the making in Italy.

The geographical objective of the Allies is Rome, but equally as important is the diversion of German forces from the invasion area. The entire German position in Italy is becoming precarious.

Allied forces on the Anzio beachhead will soon be heard from, according to many observers and to radio reports from the Nazis. A drive from this sector toward the German flank could have the dual objective of squeezing the enemy in a vise and of consolidating the two Allied positions. Allied forces have seized the initiative, and their momentum should carry them much farther, unless Hitler is willing and able to weaken his defenses in other sectors to make an all-out stand in Italy.

Gen. Zeizler Probably Hitler's Successor

DURING ALL THE MONTHS Germany has been at war little has been heard of one of its most capable as well as important military figures. Always the dispatches have been filled with references to Hitler, Goering, Goebbels and a few others.

Allied observers have come to the conclusion that Gen. Kurt Zeizler, chief of staff, is the man who has saved the situation to date for the German army. It was Gen. Zeizler who planned and directed the retreats from Russia, rated by some as among history's greatest military feats.

Gen. Zeizler is not one of Hitler's intimate gang. He is an old army figure who won his way to the top the slow way. Hitler apparently retained him because he was indispensable. While Gen. Rommel is presumed to be in command of anti-invasion forces, it is declared Gen. Zeizler's military brains will be depended upon to save the day for the Nazis.

Should the German army decide Hitler must be deposed, Zeizler might become head of a military government. But this is not to imply that he would lead an open revolt against the Fuehrer. He has an army ready and able to make a stubborn resistance against the Allies, an army which is not likely to quit until the homeland is threatened.

With most vegetables and meats rationed, butter has become the real aristocrat of the dinner table.

I Don't Believe It!

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Once a friend of mine, a woman, described another woman to me. . . She said that this woman was greatly talented and "gorgeous-looking", the most beautiful woman she had ever seen. . . This other woman was a singer and when appeared on a platform she held her audience spellbound. . . Then my friend repeated her remark about how astoundingly beautiful that woman was and how enraptured all men were with her—but she wasn't conscious of her beauty nor of her enormous attraction for men!

Well, I'm a fairly capable believer. I can believe hundreds of things that aren't true. I can believe nonsense, fantasy, folklore, exaggeration, fabrication, but I can't believe THAT.

I don't believe there was ever a beautiful woman on the face of this earth—unless she was orphaned at birth and lived all her days alone on a desert island—who didn't know she was beautiful and wasn't affected by that awareness of her own beauty.

Every woman can and does compare herself with other women. She knows that her nose is straight, her eyes lustrous, her teeth white, her skin clear, her body shapely. . . If she's beautiful other women tell her, and the men gather round. . . Even if she doesn't have a mirror, she can look into a still pool of water, can't she? If she is beautiful, how can she miss that knowledge? Even as a little girl, hanging to her mother's hand, nice old ladies stopped and smiled and remarked out loud what a beautiful child she was!

She knows she is beautiful and how to live up to her gifts. Sometimes this knowledge makes her humble if she has the character to go with it. Often it makes her greedy and demanding, vain and imperious. . . Sometimes her beauty is a precious gift to all, or it transforms her into a pest.

But tell me the sun rises in the west, sets in the east; tell me the law of gravitation has been repealed; tell me that fun is a sin and man was born to suffer and I might believe you. But tell me a beautiful woman does not know she is beautiful and I'll argue you down till doomsday.

One-Man Doctrine Has No Authority, Pettengill Avers

By SAMUEL B. PETTENGILL

The New Deal doctrine of the "commander-in-chief's authority over civilians is a very dangerous poison. It is time for the public to understand that there is no authority for it under the constitution, whether in war or peace.

During the Mexican war a lieutenant-colonel required a merchant to move his merchandise into an area where it was totally lost. The merchant sued the colonel for trespass. The jury awarded damages in the sum of $90,806 plus costs of $5,048. The United States supreme court upheld the verdict and left the officer to reflect upon a judgment of $95,854. Mitchell vs. Harmony, 54 U. S. 115.

The court said that the "law did not confide in him a discretionary power over private property. Urgent necessity would alone give him the right." The court held also that the officer was not protected because he obeyed an unlawful order of his superior.

British Naval Officer Liable

In a British case, England's greatest judge, Lord Mansfield, held a navy officer liable in damages for pulling down a house in which liquor was sold to his sailors to "the injury of their health." This was held to be an arbitrary and illegal exercise of power. Instead of destroying a civilian's home, the judge no doubt thought the officer might have commanded his own men not to go there to get drunk.

Applying this to the Montgomery Ward case, where men struck in violation of the Smith-Connally law, Lord Mansfield would probably hold that the strikers should be the ones to be disciplined, rather than their employers.

During the siege of New Orleans, the commanding general was Andrew Jackson, whose picture is hung at New Deal banquets. Jackson put a judge under military arrest on the ground that the judge was interfering with army action, although peace had been declared. The judge fined the general. Jackson, although a hot-headed man, was big enough and morally brave enough to admit his mistake and pay the fine.

Lincoln Order Illegal

The greatest American judicial decision bearing on this question, however, is ex parte Milligan, which Attorney General Biddle recently tried to get the supreme court to overrule, without success. In that case a civilian was tried by a military court and sentenced to death. But as the arrest took place outside the theater of actual military operations, the supreme court reversed the case and held illegal an order of President Lincoln, the "commander-in-chief," suspending habeas corpus in non-belligerent territory.

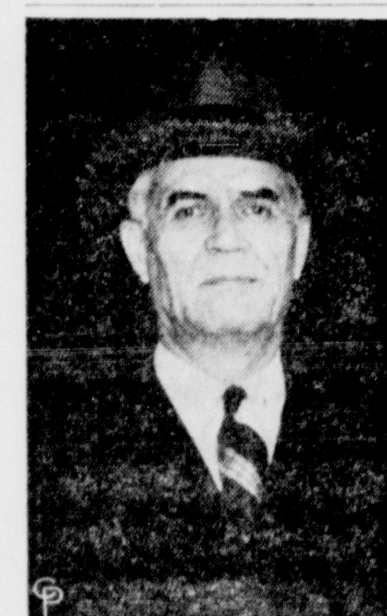

"The constitution of the United States is a law for rulers and people, equally in war and in peace, and covers with the shield of its protection all classes of men, at all times, and under all circumstances. No doctrine, involving more pernicious consequences, was ever invented by the wit of man than that any of its provisions can be suspended during any of the great exigencies of government."

"Such a doctrine leads directly to anarchy or despotism, but the theory and necessity on which it is based is false; for the government, within the constitution, has all the powers granted to it, which are necessary to preserve its existence; as has been happily proved by the result of the great effort to throw off its just authority." United States supreme court, in Milligan case decision, cited in Senate debate of November 17, 1942.

One-Man Doctrine

Mr. Roosevelt has been unfortunate in his army generals, Jackson and Biddle. Both of them have been able to find everything that Mr. Roosevelt undertakes to be legal. Mr. Biddle now says flatly that the army occupation of Montgomery Ward was entirely proper.

MAY GET NAVY POST

ACCORDING to informed Washington quarters, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Ralph A. Bard, 59, of Cleveland, O., will receive the nomination as undersecretary of the navy. Bard, who came to Washington in 1941 at the request of the late Frank M. Knox, is Navy Secretary Forrestal's personal choice to succeed him in the undersecretary post.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

whether Congress authorized it or not and that it is not reviewable by the courts.

This is nothing less than the One-Man doctrine. We mobilized an army to crush that doctrine in foreign lands, and find part of that same army used to uphold it at home.

Whether the supreme court will uphold Messrs. Biddle and Roosevelt remains to be seen. A governor of Texas declared martial law and, with his soldiers, denied the right of civilians to carry on their business. Chief Justice Hughes, speaking for an unanimous court, ruled that the doctrine of military necessity is subject to judicial review. He said that if this were not so "the fiat of a governor, and not the constitution of the United States, would be the supreme law of the land."

Too bad Hughes is not president today.

A Doubtful Remedy

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

Senator Barkley, who is for a fourth term for Mr. Roosevelt despite his spectacular break with the president over the tax bill, says there is no danger of presidential dictatorship so long as the people have the right to retain or throw out the president every four years.

Theoretically, Senator Barkley is right. Actually, in the light of recent developments, he is resting democracy on a very slender reed.

There are two great obstacles in the path of any popular uprising against Mr. Roosevelt, obstacles which would protect any other president in the same position.

The first of these is the tremendous block of votes represented by those on the public payroll, their friends and families, and those who otherwise receive direct monetary benefits from the government, and their friends and families.

The second is the less obvious but perhaps even more powerful force of a controlled judiciary. Mr. Roosevelt will have been president for twelve years when his present term expires. Already he has made over the supreme court. And he has appointed a large number of the judges now sitting on federal district benches. These men, selected because of their leaning toward the particular socialist bent of the New Deal, already have placed an entirely new interpretation on much of the Constitution. Give a man long enough in the White House—and maybe we will discover that twelve years is long enough for the purpose—and he can so warp the law so entrench himself that only death can remove him.

Why not play safe, whether or not Mr. Roosevelt wins this time, put a constitutional limitation on the presidential tenure?

WASHINGTON, May 19—Although there is very little discussion of politics for publication nowadays among officials here, there seems to be no doubt that the Democrats have a great deal more confidence about winning the autumn elections than they had a few months ago.

Perhaps the chief reason for their optimism can be summed up in one phrase—short memories. The Democrats have a theory that the American people are so much absorbed in the war situation, or will be soon, that they will forget most of the mistakes of the last few years and most of the so-called issues of a domestic nature.

To illustrate the point, just the other day a Democrat asked this correspondent whether he believed most of the people remembered what the fuss was about in connection with Senator Barkley a few weeks back. Did the people really recall what the issue was and what the controversy was about? Possibly this is a simple thing to put to test if one asks his friends and acquaintances. The chances are that most people have forgotten what happened in that episode. Yet, at the time it occupied prominent space in all the newspapers and was a sensation.

Ward Case an Example

President Roosevelt, of course, had some phenomenon in mind when he promptly disposed of the Montgomery Ward case. It is still recent and will be remembered by a great many people, but the question is whether by the autumn it will be recalled.

The whole strategy of the Democrats is to focus attention on the war situation—and if it appears that the war is about to come to an end, then to focus on the peace negotiations. Certainly, between now and the time for the November elections the "invasion" will have begun and the newspapers will be filled with dispatches about the desperate struggle abroad. Under such circumstances, how much attention will be paid to political controversies? Will the radio speeches on campaign subjects be listened to?

This is a campaign which will probably settle once and for all the age-old argument of whether presidential elections are actually won or lost during the campaign or whether they are lost or won as a consequence of the act of an incumbent president during the preceding three years of his term of office.

One Advantage for GOP

Many observers have contended that election campaigns do not change many votes and that people are set in their prejudices for a candidate or a party long before the campaigns are held.

If this theory is correct, then the Republicans will have an advantage because there is no doubt that the administration has been on the defensive for the last two years and has encountered considerable opposition because of its method of administering the war program on the home front.

If, on the other hand, campaigns are won by the speech-making and the emphasis that is given to issues during the campaign itself, then Governor Dewey will be at a distinct disadvantage. For one thing, the New York governor has not made many speeches and has maintained an attitude of aloofness toward the nomination itself so that whatever opportunity the public may have had to get acquainted with him or his views has been largely forfeited because of the peculiar campaign developed in his behalf. It is a serious question whether the Republican nominee will be able to compete with the headlines or the news that will be coming from the battle front. In fact, if the "invasion" happens during the time of the Republican convention, the news of that convention and its platform may be obscured entirely.

Democrats Won't Need Publicity

As for the Democratic convention, it will not need much public attention. President Roosevelt is really in no need of publicity from a Democratic national convention. In fact the very opposite will be true. Every effort will be made to make it appear that the action of the convention is merely the routine result of a unanimous agreement of the party on the president's nomination.

It would not be at all surprising, too, if the president was out of the country during the time of the Democratic national convention. If, for example, the invasion is completed by that time and our troops are landed on the coast of France and have cleared a considerable area, Mr. Roosevelt may be over there on one of his customary "inspection" trips which he takes in campaign years.

In any event, the chances for publicity during the campaign will favor the president far more than they will his opponent, and it is much to be regretted that Governor Dewey by his silence has been, in effect, losing opportunities to acquaint the country with the basic issues of the war and the peace.

The "Y" Comes Through

From the Christian Science Monitor

Jimmy was not a robust lad and did not go in for football or some of the heavier sports, but he learned to swim and became an expert. He first went into the water on his Dad's back, when he was four years old. This was down at the Y. M. C. A. pool—for Jimmy's family lived in an inland town where there was hardly a waterhole. Later he won the fifty-yard dash. Australian crawl. And last year his ability enabled him to help several of his comrades one dark night in the Coral Sea.

There are thousands of Jimmies in the services—and other lads who developed themselves physically in "Y" gyms, or learned something there about leadership and co-operation and getting along with their fellow-men in the cities and towns all over the United States. The nation really owes a debt of thanks to the Young Men's Christian Association, which soon will be celebrating its centennial. Hats off to the "Y!"

Postwar Training Proposals Fail To Move Solons

By CENTRAL PRESS

WASHINGTON—National Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey has been urging continuation of universal military training after the war, but Congress appears slow in taking action.

Representative Andrew May (D) of Kentucky, chairman of the House Military Affairs committee, introduced a bill last January calling for a year's compulsory military or naval training at the age of 17 or immediately following graduation from high school, but no action has been taken.

Over the protests of May, the new House committee on post-war military policy has given priority to the army-industry proposal for a single department of the armed forces. Postwar selective service has been given second consideration.

Alert, far-sighted military and civilian leaders fear that unless some "draft" legislation is passed before the war ends, the nation will fall into the same state of lethargy that prevailed after World War I.

Handwriting for 4-F's

The handwriting is on the wall for the 4-F's who think that military deferments entitled them to evade service in essential industries.

The army, navy and selective service has lined up in support of the so-called draft bill sponsored by Senators Josiah Bailey (D) of South Carolina and Ralph Brewster (R) of Maine. The measure, in effect, tells 4-F's to get into vital industries voluntarily or do it under military supervision.

Its Own Worst Press Agent

The office of war information has cleared millions of words on the war and on other government agency activities to the press and radio, but remains its own worst press agent.

Washington newsmen believe that what the agency needs is someone to tell the stories of the notable and worthwhile activities of the OWI. For instance, the agency did much to get extra facilities for news coverage overseas, particularly in connection with the operations in Sicily, Italy and the forthcoming invasion.

In addition, the agency has done much to open or reopen news channels in Washington; has battled constantly with the war and navy department officials to get more news; it has done a good job of exposing Nazi and Japanese propaganda in neutral countries and occupied areas by dropped leaflets, delivering radio broadcasts, etc.

Most of the publicity OWI has received has been definitely of the unfavorable type. Some of it may have been deserved, but much of it has appeared unfounded to insiders who have been urging OWI to do a little drum-beating on its own behalf.

Fourth Term Run Seems Settled

President Roosevelt's prolonged and health-restoring vacation on the sprawling, sun-swept acres of Bernard Baruch's vast South Carolina plantation has dispelled all doubt in the minds of political observers that he will seek a fourth term.

However, it would be more correct to say that the president prefers to have the fourth term seek him, for informed sources are positive he will remain mum on the subject until the Democratic convention at Chicago drafts him by acclamation.

Then, as in 1940, he will address the convention by radio from the White House.

By the time the Democrats act the European invasion probably will be under way at several points, and American naval forces may be pounding the Japs in new engagements in the far Pacific.

Thus the president will have considerably more reason than in 1940 for staying away from the convention.

One of the purposes of the vacation was to get the president in shape for the political war—which the administration knows will be tougher than at any time since 1932.

So Washington is saying the president chooses to run again—and the Democrats are certain they can beat New York's Governor Tom Dewey when the chips are down in November.

Junior Does His Bit

From the Christian Science Monitor

Just when Junior had the electric train to himself—Dad being awfully busy with his garden and a couple of war jobs—along comes Uncle Sam and says he'd like the loan of these model trains for instructing army men in railroad operation.

Junior's as patriotic as the next fellow, and he has already made up his mind to offer the train for the duration. The question in his mind, however, is how to break the news to Dad.

Well, Junior, our guess is Dad won't really mind. He's a pretty patriotic fellow, too, you know. And even for him to give up your train to Uncle Sam is not asking too much in times like these.

Many Rails and Specialties Gain In Active Session of Stock Market

By BERNARD S. O'HARA
NEW YORK, May 19 (AP)—Rails and specialties, including liquors and stocks, maintained the forward in today's stock market while industrial leaders found the going a bit rough.
Dividends, earnings and individual situations again inspired the return to full investment funds and the generally cheering war news overshadowed the little invasion nervousness that remained as a purposeful restraint. Closing gains of 100 points to a point predominated with a few jumps of 2 to 3.
Transfers of 789,300 shares compared with 944,470 Thursday.
Lackawanna securities, including those of Morris & Essex, a subsidiary, were wide movers as the I. C. gave its final approval to the merger of the New York and Delaware systems.
In front also were Sante Fe, Atlantic Coast Line, Allegheny preferred, Park & Tilford, Woolworth, Coca-Cola, American Telephone, U. S. Rubber, Westinghouse, Caterpillar Tractor and J. C. Penny.
Rises for 1944 were recorded for Cuban-American sugar, South Porto Rico Sugar, Newport Industries and Indar Oil.
On the offside were U. S. Steel, Chrysler, General Electric, Montgomery Ward and Consolidated Edson International Harvester lost an early mild advance following boosting of the quarterly payment to shareholders from 50 to 65 cents but came back at the close for a net gain of 1/4 at 73 1/4.

Cities Service slipped 1/4 in the Curb as the company decided to divest itself of its utility properties and keep the oil and gas holdings. The S. E. C. had ruled it could not retain both. Advancers were Colts Patent Fire Arms, Cuban Atlantic Sugar, Lackawanna of N. J. and Brown-Forman Distillers. The aggregate here was 184,575 shares versus 173,190 yesterday.
Rail bonds were again heavily favored by buyers in the bond market and the Associated Press carrier average advanced 2 of a point to a new seven-year high. It was the fifth consecutive rise for this composite.
Price movements were narrow in other groups with dealings quiet. Transactions amounted to $12,435,900 face value compared with $12,782,300 the previous session.

CHICAGO, May 19 (AP)—Excellent growing weather for the winter wheat crop outweighed reports of a revival in flour business as an influence on bread cereal futures today. In moderately active trade, wheat dropped for losses extending to more than a cent. Rye was weak but oats and barley held relatively steady.

The outlook for a bumper fruit crop is more encouraging than it had been for years, Dr. Symons said, explaining that while the recent

Australians Favor Granting Naval, Air Bases to America after War

Many Willing to See New Britain Governed Jointly by the United States and Australia, Gallup Survey Reveals

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., May 19—Evidence that the majority of people in Australia are looking to the United States for armed aid in future years as well as during this war is revealed in a survey just completed by Australian Public Opinion Polls.

This study, conducted through-out Australia by an affiliate of the American Institute of Public Opinion, found that approximately two out of every three voters are in favor of letting the American navy and air force use bases in Australia after the war.

However, the number who favor this arrangement is not as large now as it was a year ago. A similar survey conducted May, 1943, found a vote of nearly eight to two in favor of granting postwar bases to the Americans.

The issue put to Australian voters was as follows:

"It has been suggested that we should let the American navy and air forces use bases in Australia after the war. Do you favor or oppose this suggestion?"

Today Year Ago

Favor 65% 77%

Oppose 20% 15%

Undecided 15% 8%

March 1943, receiving his training at Camp Butler, N. C., and arrived in Italy Jan. 29. The last letter his mother received was dated Feb. 20. His father was the late Charles "Barney" Harshbarger. He attended Piedmont high school and before entering service was employed at Piedmont Ice Company.

A brother Robert is anticipating a call for pre-induction examination. Dolores and Elizabeth Harshbarger, sisters, are home.

Howard High Students Hear Sermon

Lowe, assistant superintendent; remarks by principal S. M. Payne.

Class night exercises were held to-night with following taking part: Stewart Twyman, Freda Clifford, Ida Ruth Price, Marie Kane, Stewart Payne, Roseline Spencer.

The junior-senior prom was held Thursday night in the school auditorium. Music was furnished by James Gilmore's orchestra.

Announces Engagement

Miss Repp is a graduate of the University of Maryland and is a bases were asked, in the most recent survey, whether this arrangement should be permanent, or whether the bases should simply be leased for a period of time. The weight of sentiment was strongly in favor of leasing.

Australian opinion was also sounded on the question whether the United States should be free to use bases on the various Pacific islands around Australia after the war. Voters expressed themselves in favor by a majority of approximately 2-to-1.

So long as Australian opinion remains as indicated above, it does not seem likely that there will be any major friction between the two nations over the extent of American naval power in Australian waters during postwar years.

The desire of Australians to co-operate with the United States is also shown in still another poll dealing with the island of New Britain.

Before the war, New Britain was governed by Australia as a League of Nations mandate. While approximately half of Australia's voters want their country to continue to govern New Britain after the war, nevertheless a substantial number are in favor of setting up joint Australian-American control of this island where many American servicemen have lost their lives.

The number who favor joint control is forty-two per cent, as compared to forty-nine per cent who think Australia alone should govern New Britain, two per cent who think America alone should control the island, and seven per cent who are undecided.

WASHINGTON, May 19 (AP)—No relief from gas rationing awaits the American motorist in the "foreseeable future", Ralph K. Davies, deputy petroleum administrator for war, told the House Interstate Commerce subcommittee on petroleum. He said that the military oil consumption today, approximately equals production, but added there had been no shortage in the oil supply for military uses since the start of the war.

Armour Ideas Make the Most of Meat

Armour's Star Bacon and Cabbage... Good!

Haven't you heard men rave over corned beef and cabbage? Well, just let the man of your house try this delicious bacon and cabbage dish! It's wonderfully full of flavor. It's hearty and satisfying. It's the dish that gives that "well-fed" feeling... yet is so thrifty you'll want to serve it often.

It tastes extra good because it's made with Armour's Star Bacon, the rich, mild bacon that is sugar-cured in its own juices, then slow-smoked over fragrant hickory and hardwood fires. So flavorful that its fine meat flavor extends through all the cabbage...

makes just a little go a long way. And in this bacon and cabbage dish you need no butter (that's point saving). To prepare the dish, fry 4 or more slices of Armour's Star Bacon slowly until crisp. Remove slices. Add 2 tbsps. sugar and 2 tbsps. flour to corned fat. Blend. Add 1/2 cup water and 1/2 cup vinegar gradually. Cook and stir until thick. Season. Cook cabbage in boiling water for 5 minutes. Drain. Pour sweet-sour sauce over cabbage. To serve, place crisp bacon slices on top of cabbage. Serves 4.

Kirke L. Simpson Says: Early Collapse of Hitler Line Indicated by Official Reports

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press War Analyst

Possible collapse of the vaunted Nazi Adolf Hitler defense line in Italy in even less time than it took Allied troops to smash its Gustav forward wall loomed in official reports and press accounts from the seething peninsular front as the battle rolled into its second week.

Critically dented in the right center by French capture of Sant'Oliva village on its commanding hill top south of the Liri, the whole right wing of the German secondary front below Rome appeared doomed. Nazi evacuation of the Aurunci mountain pass and Gesta Point to escape entrapment seemed expected by Allied observers to heighten the impression that a general German retreat up the peninsula may be impending if it has not already begun.

The lesser hills of the Ausoni mountains north of the coastal town of Terracina offer some chance of another enemy stand on the sea flank of the line. They are neither as formidable a barrier to frontal or flank attack as the Aurunci cluster, however, nor are they as well served with road communications. An extemporized defensive position there would also be dangerously exposed to Allied attack from the rear from the Anzio beachhead.

A staff spokesman for the Allied commander in Italy termed the Nazi flight from the Aurunci "a disorderly retreat" instead of a withdrawal.

There can be no serious question that the Allied break-through to or into the Hitler line is forcing the enemy to a momentous decision. He must stand and fight or begin his retreat, abandoning the defense of Rome, before it is too late. And the line on which to make that stand now below the Pontine marshes would be both longer than either the lost Gustav or the cracked Hitler line, and more vulnerable to flanking maneuvers.

Stage Career Calls Star for Third Time

Although he has been an important figure in the entertainment world for more than thirty years, Erich Von Stroheim, who is currently appearing in Republic's psychological mystery, "The Lady and the Monster" which opens tomorrow at the Maryland theater, has only had two stage engagements.

He is now considering a third. Von Stroheim will find the stage no novelty since he played for more than six months in "Arsenic and Old Lace," but that engagement was a good deal different than his first. "The Lady and the Monster" is one of Republic's high budget pictures for the year and it introduces lovely blonde Vera Hruha Ralston in her first dramatic part, heading an all star cast which includes Richard Arlen, and Von Stroheim.

Huge Tarpaulin Set Used in "Phantom Lady"

Biggest tarpaulin set utilized at Universal in years was constructed on the lot's "New York street" for night exterior shots in "Phantom Lady," starring Franchot Tone and Ella Raines, with Alan Curtis, now at the Liberty theater.

Black tarpaulin blanketed 810 feet of the main thoroughfare and sections of two intersecting "brown-stone streets," with an overall ceiling of forty-two feet.

Gleason Commemorates With "A Guy Named Joe"

James Gleason, beloved veteran of stage and screen, commemorates his fifty-seventh year as an actor with his appearance in M-G-M's "A Guy Named Joe," the new movie which starts tomorrow at the Embassy theater, starring Spencer Tracy and Irene Dunne in an inspirational story of aviators in wartime.

He is cast as a tough veteran of the air corps, affectionately dubbed "Nails," whose unpleasant job it is to keep such daredevil pilots as Tracy, Ward Bond and Van Johnson in line.

"... and we'll drop in the Fort Cumberland Bar for a glass of beer. You'll enjoy 'Peck' Mills music."

American Planes Bomb Wake Island

UNITED PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, PEARL HARBOR, May 19 (P)—American planes, striking Wake Island for the second time in as many days, flew through intense anti-aircraft fire to batter two objectives there Wednesday.

A Pacific fleet announcement today added that a big army Liberator was shot down during the attack on that mid-Pacific naval base captured by the Japanese from a small American garrison early in the war.

No details were given on the extent of damage inflicted by the Seventh army air force bombers concentrating their attack on Heel Point and Peale Island.

Other planes from the Seventh air force meantime renewed assaults on Ponape, easternmost enemy base in the Caroline Islands.

Pilots of the Mitchell bombers returning from the raid reported no anti-aircraft fire was encountered.

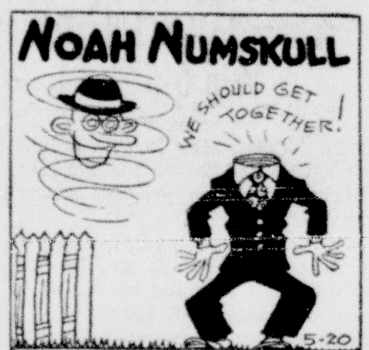

Navy and marine planes continued their daily attacks on enemy positions on the eastern fringe of the Marshall Islands.

Suit Against West Va. Publisher Dismissed

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 19 (P)—Circuit Judge Julian F. Bouchele, acting on the plaintiff's own motion, dismissed today the $100,000 damage suit which Road Commissioner Ernest L. Bailey brought against the Charleston Daily Mail Association and Publisher Walter E. Clark.

The action was based upon criticism in Clark's personal column of the state's purchase of the Silver bridge spanning the Ohio river at Point Pleasant for $1,050,000.

Keyser Schoolgirl Dies after Fall; Boy Is Badly Hurt

Wilco Hott, Jr., Route 1, Keyser, Is Run Over by Truck

A Keyser, W. Va., schoolgirl died in Memorial hospital shortly before noon yesterday of injuries suffered Thursday afternoon when she fell from a wall near the Keyser high school gymnasium, and a 14-year-old boy, Wilco Hott, Jr., of Route 1, Keyser, was in a critical condition in Memorial hospital last night from injuries suffered when he was run over by a truck on a country road near the Furgitville-Moorefield state highway.

The schoolgirl was Barbara Lee Tettenburn, 10, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Tettenburn, of Virginia street, Keyser.

Keyser police said the girl, a pupil in the fifth grade, was playing during recess when the accident happened Thursday afternoon. They said she fell from a five-foot wall adjoining the steps leading to the gymnasium, and State Trooper L. E. Proudfoot, of the West Virginia State Police, added that a playmate fell on her.

Suffers Skull Fracture

She showed no immediate ill effects from the fall but complications developed in the night and yesterday morning she was rushed to Memorial hospital where she was admitted at 10 a. m. She died an hour and twenty-three minutes later of a fractured skull.

Besides her parents she is survived by five brothers, Howard Tettenburn, Panama; Elwood Tettenburn, Baltimore; Walter Tettenburn, serving in the army; Fred Tettenburn, in the navy, and Frank Tettenburn, at home. Another brother, Richard Tettenburn, was killed in an automobile accident two years ago.

The critically injured youth is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilco Hott. Hospital attaches said the boy was working on a lime truck operated by George Spencer, also of Keyser, Route 1.

Jumps to Running Board

According to Trooper Proudfoot, the boy ran to the moving truck from another vehicle, apparently failed to hear Spencer's warning to wait, and jumped to the right running board.

Hott lost his balance and fell beneath the wheels of the truck at noon yesterday. He suffered a fractured pelvis, fractured right leg and internal injuries.

Spencer brought him to the hospital where he was given blood plasma and a transfusion in an effort to save his life.

Betty Jane Yoder, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Yoder, Pinto, was reported to be in a good condition in Allegheny hospital last night where she is undergoing treatment for a fractured skull, suffered yesterday morning when she ran against the front of an automobile near her home.

Hospital attaches said the automobile was driven by a neighbor, Hoffman Collins, and reported that members of the family said Collins was not to blame for the accident.

Railroader Is Hurt

The child was taken to the hospital by her aunt, Mrs. Charles Liller. State Trooper Glen Folk, who investigated, said no charges have been entered against Collins.

Ralph Summers, 33, of 28 West Roberts street, a Baltimore and Ohio railroad brakeman, was admitted to Memorial hospital at 5 p. m. for treatment of an injury of his right knee, suffered in a fall from a caboose.

Gladys Swick, 2, daughter of Philip Swick, 856 Maryland avenue, was admitted to Memorial hospital at 5:30 p. m. yesterday for observation after she fell over a low bank and suffered small brush burns on her face.

Sgt. William Evans Awarded Bronze Star For Pacific Exploit

County Agent Advises Victory Gardeners on Insect Control

Methods Suggested by McHenry Are Based on "Eating Habits"

As an aid to victory gardeners The Cumberland News plans to publish a series of short articles covering the more important plant diseases and insects found in the gardens of Allegheny county. It is suggested that gardeners clip these items as they appear and save them for reference. Most insect and disease problems that county gardeners may have will be covered in these articles prepared by Ralph P. McHenry, county farm agent. The first article deals with types of insects.

If gardeners will think of insects as types instead of as individual kinds of insects they will find the problem of control greatly simplified. For these articles, insects have been placed in two general classes, governed by the way they eat.

The suggested methods of controlling them will be based on their "eating habits." One of these types is the chewing insect, examples of which are the bean beetle, the striped cucumber beetle and the cabbage worm. They eat sections of the plant.

Kills Insect

These chewing insects are controlled by placing a substance such as lead arsenate on the plants that will poison and kill the insect when it is taken into the stomach.

The second type is the sucking insect, examples of which are the plant louse or aphid, the harlequin bug and the squash bug. Sucking insects do not eat any part of the plant tissue, but instead have an elongated beak which they stick down into the plant to suck out the juice or sap.

Since they do not eat the plant they cannot be controlled with a stomach poison, but must be controlled with a material such as black leaf forty that will kill them by coming in contact with their bodies. It is well to remember, in order to apply materials intelligently, that in controlling sucking insects the plant must be sprayed or dusted and in controlling sucking insects the insect itself must be sprayed or dusted.

John J. McMullen, the president of our company, has a motto which is apropos to the occasion, "We do the impossible immediately, miracles take a little longer." Again Chatter says "Welcome to Cumberland!"

May your stay with us not only be profitable, but one that you will long remember.

About a week ago an Oakland family was discussing Mother's day while at lunch and the two boys reminded the father of the need for a present for mother on Sunday. The girl, aged 2, naturally didn't have much to say about the matter. Like many fathers, this one asked mother what she wanted.

Mother said, "I'll leave that up to you three men. If you had listened carefully from time to time you would have heard numerous suggestions as to what I want around here."

Up spoke the 9-year-old boy: "I know what she wants—peace and quiet!"

A Hagerstown theater which recently participated in WAC recruiting week, had decorated its lobby and bulletin boards with WAC posters and other recruiting material. So far well and good, but here's the pay off. The picture being shown at the time was "The Navy Way".

Of course it is a $5 word, but please do not be alarmed if a report is received saying that a soldier is "ambulatory." In spite of the fact that many persons believe it means a patient needs an ambulance, it only signifies that he is able to move about in his ward, so Mrs. Louise Dean, secretary of the local Red Cross chapter informs Chatter.

Issuance of canning sugar stamps by the local ration board came just in time to save the sweet tooth of at least one Cumberland G. I. After she submitted her application for the additional twenty pounds, the mother of the soldier was heard to remark, "Well, it's a good thing I'm getting this sugar. I just can't make cookies and candy to send to my boy in the army on the amount of sugar I've been getting."

First Aid Course Will Be Held in LaVale

A standard First Aid course will be offered to all Civilian Defense workers of the LaVale section who have not had First Aid instruction. E. C. Lancaster, instructor, announced last evening.

The class will begin Monday evening, May 22, at 7 p. m. in Park Place Methodist church, LaVale. All interested citizens will be welcomed.

Rotenone Is Scarce

Rotenone is an imported material that is very effective against beet beetles and other chewing insects, and to some extent against sucking insects. The supply, however, is short for all purposes and usually it is rationed.

Dusting sulphur is effective against certain plant diseases. Flowers of sulphur, however, are not suitable. It is particularly effective against rust and powdery mildew diseases. Sulphur should never be used on canteloupes, cucumbers or other related crops.

Recommendations for control of specific insects, to be made in a following article, will be confined largely to one or the other of these compounds.

Ridgeley Seniors Are Told To Work For Better World

H. L. Idleman Presents Diplomas to Twenty-Four Seniors

Co-operation by the American eagle, the Russian bear, the British lion and the Chinese dragon will be able to keep the peace after the present war is won, Dr. W. H. S. White, president of Shepherd college, Shepherdstown, W. Va., told the graduates of Ridgeley high school in his speech, "Swords into Plowshares" at the commencement exercises held last evening in the high school auditorium.

Force under law by the great powers was one of the three means advocated by the West Virginia educator to keep the peace after it is won.

The advancement of education was another point in his three-fold program. He cited the misuse of education Hitler used in his rise to power. The same force can be used to form a good and enduring society, he added.

The four freedoms, freedom of speech, freedom of worship, freedom from fear and want will, he stressed, be needed in the postwar world.

White appealed to the students to help beat the swords into plowshares instead of rockets as we have been doing. The educator, who has two sons in service, warned that another war might and probably would produce even more destructive and terrifying weapons than we now have.

Awards presented by Melvin M. Heiskell, principal included the Danforth Foundation award, copies of "I Dare You" to Norma Jean Spangler and Kenneth Carder; a year's subscription to the Readers' Digest to Norma Spangler, valedictorian; Mayor Paul K. Morgan's sportsman's award to Kenneth Carder as the best sport of the year, and the Balfour scholastic achievement award to Kenneth Carder.

Diplomas were presented by H. L. Idleman, superintendent of Mineral county schools, to the twenty-four seniors present. The diploma of Pvt. Fred Earl Wilson, who entered the army in March, was given to his mother, Mrs. Carrie Magruder.

The valedictory address was given by Norma Spangler while Tessa Cassell delivered the Salutatory speech. Miss Emerald Stillman directed two choruses by the seniors.
